

Marian Kraus Photography - Corporate And Personal Gifts That Speak The Mind And Spirit

The collection and display of photographs can speak volumes. One's personal preferences, affinities and inner struggles are often revealed by the photographic art with which one chooses to surround oneself. Reflective, inspirational, beautiful, and reverential: photographs communicate sometimes with the spirit as well as the mind, and artists eager to encourage these connections make it easy for art lovers to obtain pieces that speak to them. Marian Kraus' has made his collection of fine art photography available for purchase online as corporate and personal gifts. Companies can vitalize the common areas in the work place with prints of exquisite imagery and inspiring text. Individuals can easily add vibrancy to their living spaces with elegantly framed prints of stimulating cityscapes, magnificent mountain ranges, or spectacular skyscapes.

Kraus' work seeks to present an unexpected view of the familiar in order to encourage open-mindedness and imagine a perspective beyond the expected. His commercial work and fine art photography coax the viewer to see the unique in an environment which may be all too familiar. This creativity of perspective is especially highlighted by his architecture themed collections of streetscapes, doors and individual elements. Prints of Kraus' modern images of nature and man-made architecture, available for purchase online, offer individuals and corporations an opportunity to enhance their living and working spaces with art that speaks to the spirit. His collection of corporate and personal gifts emphasizes the genius and spirit of architecture and design, the precision and the delicacy of nature, the beauty that is present in the everyday.

One of the fundamental precepts that Kraus' work embodies is the idea of the Golden Ratio. The Golden Ratio is a principle that dictates that all things strive for beauty and completeness both in nature and in art. Structures, forms, proportions and organic life forms naturally seek to visually enhance their environments. The Golden Ratio purports that a trained eye can see these patterns of order and charm in all that is seen and heard. Kraus' line of corporate and personal gifts communicate his refined interpretation of the Golden Ratio, and offers the opportunity for others to reflect on his art within their own lives, broadening the normal frame of reference.

Kraus' framed motivational prints and messages offered in his online store for corporate and personal gifts are particularly designed to humanize the corporate workplace. There is a subtle elegance in a spiral staircase if one pauses to look; there is grandeur in the dense height of a forest, if one broadens the mind to see more than a tree; the precise alignment buildings along a city street can match the organic crystals of ice on a river's surface, if one visualizes them side by side. The vitality of Kraus' photographs speaks to the creative mind and encourages original solutions to problems, unique methods of overcoming challenges, truer paths to personal tranquility.
