If two major airlines have started plying the same route at the same time, it often results in a price war. Also if any major airline has started a new route they may offer cheap plane airfares as promotional sales. Keep your ears and eyes open to keep track of sales of cheap airfares.
2. Be flexible in your flight plan: If you are not obstinate about flying a particular day or at a particular time, you can make use of cheap plane airfares offered on off peak hours. Tuesday, Wednesday and Saturday are the cheapest days to fly. Late nights and early morning flights tend to be discounted as well.
3. Cheap packages: Sometimes airline offer a combo package of cheap ticket- cheap hotel and cheap rental car. Make enquiries whether your airline offers you an attractive travel package whereby you save a few hundred dollars.
4. Compare websites: Make sure you are availing of the cheapest tickets on your route. This you can do by using a travel agency or by yourself clicking on airline websites and comparing the various fares available. Travel websites will have a comprehensive listing of air fares across the length of your journey
5. Standby fares: Find out about stand by fares if you are flying off season. Peak season is a bad time to fly stand by as most airlines are over booked and it is difficult to find a standby seat.
6. Consolidators: Buy tickets from consolidators who buy tickets in bulk and sell air tickets at a discount to try and help airlines fill up their seats. Check out for ads on consolidators in news papers and websites.
7. Advance booking: The cheapest seats of an airline are often the first few seats. So remember to book in advance like 21 days before. Book more in advance for holiday flights for November and December.
8. Frequent flier benefits: Stick with the same airline while flying frequently. Many airlines offer frequent flier credits for each time you fly. These credits can then be redeemed for a free flight ticket or other goodies.
9. Connecting flights: Be flexible to break your journey into two legs. Fly discount airlines in both connecting flights. You can save a tidy sum by plane hopping.

Thus there are plenty of ways by which you can avail of cheap plane airfares, especially if you are flexible about time, date and type of airport.
